

I strongly urge you not to broaden the ownership rules for media businesses. The current rules already allow significant cross-ownership of various media. Relaxing these rules would not serve the interest of the American public to gain access to important social and governmental actions through multiple independent media sources.